

SHOCKLEY SOON TO KNOW HIS FATE

Supreme Court Will Take Up the Case Oct. 10.

EFFORTS FOR A NEW TRIAL

CONDENED MAN KEPT IN SOLITARY CONFINEMENT.

James M. Shockley, who was convicted in the district court of having murdered Amasa L. Gleason and Thomas B. Brighton, the two street car men, in this city, is counting the hours now in his cell in the penitentiary till his fate is settled by the supreme court at its session that is to meet Oct. 10. This case is expected to be reached within three days after the opening of the session of the court.

After Shockley's conviction in the district court his attorneys, Wilson & Smith, succeeded in securing a stay of execution pending a motion for a new trial. The motion is based on the claim of errors in the trial court, and the argument for a new trial will be made along this line. Attorney E. A. Smith, who will have charge of the case from this time forward, is confident that a new trial will be granted. Should the new trial be refused, and many persons are of the opinion this will be the outcome—the only recourse will be to the board of pardons. This will come in the form of an appeal for a commutation of the death sentence. This step will not be taken until all efforts to secure a new trial have failed.

Shockley in Solitary Confinement.

Shockley, in his cell in the state prison, No. 158, is cheerful and confident of securing a new hearing. He made a great deal and seems thoroughly sorry for his crime. He gives little trouble to his guards, but, owing to the nature of his offense, he is kept in solitary confinement with his exercise of an hour each day, during which he is permitted to take exercise outside. Neither he nor his guards permit themselves to think of shooting or hanging. The idea seems to be fixed in their minds that something there is to intervene to prevent an execution. The crime for which Shockley stands committed is one of the most sensational murders of the city's history, and the feeling against the murderer in the beginning was intense. The two victims, Amasa L. Gleason, were on their street car in the eastern part of the city in the performance of their duty when Shockley boarded the car and attempted to hold them up. They objected and he shot them. The flight, the arrest, the confession and the trial are all still fresh in the memory of the people.

ANCIENT DESK IN SALT LAKE

Duplicate of Washington Heirloom Owned by Mrs. Morrow.

MADE THREE CENTURIES AGO

ONLY OTHER LIKE IT IS NOW AT WORLD'S FAIR.

To a Salt Lake woman belongs the distinction of owning an ancient mahogany desk exactly like the one owned by George Washington, and which is now on exhibition at the St. Louis exposition.

The owner of the desk is Mrs. George Morrow, wife of the contractor of that name, and it has been in the possession of her family since 1823. Until a few months ago, when it disappeared, the bill of sale for the desk, written on parchment and showing that its price was $250 when purchased seven centuries ago, was a prized possession of Mrs. Morrow. The desk has not deteriorated in value, for the owner has been informed by competent authorities that if she felt disposed to sell it she could get almost any price for it. So far as is known, the desk owned by Mrs. Morrow and the one owned by George Washington are the only two of their type in existence. They were made by a famous English cabinet maker. One was sold in England to a Mr. Evans, who was an agent of the Mt. Vernon collection, and the other was made by an agent of the Washingtons and sent to this country. It was in daily use by Washington's secretaries before it was handed down to him.

Secret Drawers in Salt Lake Desk.

The only difference in the desks lies in the fact that the one owned in Salt Lake has a number of secret compartments so cunningly hidden as to defy detection by the most skillful searcher. No secret compartments. Both desks are made of solid mahogany and the drawers have apparently been carved out of solid blocks of wood. No nails nor screws have been used anywhere in the construction, wooden pegs and dovetailing being used to bind the different sections together. The one owned by Mrs. Morrow is in an excellent state of preservation and looks almost as new as the day 300 years ago when it passed from its maker's shop. The handles of polished brass are the only articles which have been renewed, and they have been changed two or three times. Each time new ones were made care was taken to have them exactly like the antique pattern and exactly like the first ones.

Has Fine China Also.

In addition to the desk Mrs. Morrow has a choice collection of rare old china, which has descended from generation to generation in her own family. Several of the pieces have historic value, as the cups and saucers of the famous willow pattern. This plate with ten others was brought over from England in 1841 by Mrs. Morrow's great-grandmother. The ship in which her grandparents were traveling was wrecked on the Newfoundland banks. The passengers and crew were taken off in fishing smacks, but the goods in the hold were given to the natives. The selection of a hostess from each religion was made by the Utah commissioners for the reason that the Mormon and Gentile religions dominated all the questions of the western state, and it was believed that the people of both religions who visit the fair would be better pleased if they should be greeted by a lady of their own sect. The position of hostess was created last week as a result of the decision of the Utah commission to entertain during the remainder of the fair most of the young ladies entered upon their duties last Monday.

RIVER BED SHIFTED.

Rio Grande Back Where it Was Ages Ago.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 2.—From all indications now at hand, from recent reports from the Brownsville section, it appears that there is a strong probability that the bed of the Rio Grande, which has been shifted for years, is receding, to occupying the bed of the Arroyo Colorado, which ages ago was its original bed. Should this prove true, the people of this region of Texas, who would be benefited by the river, would suffer greatly. The city of Brownsville, one of the rapidly growing towns of the state, would be cut off from the river, the miles of irrigation ditches and canals which would be rendered worthless and property values dependent upon the river would be in question. About seven years ago a joint commission appointed by the respective governments of the United States and Mexico, owing to the troublesome habit of the river changing its course, had upon a compromise boundary and years ago agreed to occupy the bed of the Rio Grande where they stood, however, the river may shift about.

MONUMENT UNVEILED TO THE MEMORY OF GENERAL CLARK

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—A monument was unveiled today in Bellefontaine cemetery to the memory of General William Clark, who was one of the principal leaders of the Lewis and Clark expedition into the northwest territory in 1803. The monument was erected according to the provisions in the will of Jefferson Kearsy Clark, youngest son of the explorer. Invitations to the unveiling had been sent to President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mayor and Mrs. McClellan of New York and others. Addresses were made by Major General John C. Bates, U. S. A., David H. Francis, General Pleasant Porter, chief of the Creek Indians, and Mayor John Wells of St. Louis. Representatives of five generations of the Clark family were present.

The monument is a tall obelisk of marble, three sides of which are covered with inscriptions. On a separate pedestal stands a bronze bust of General Clark.

A number of army officers and distinguished guests from over the United States and abroad were present, among them the Marquis of Aylesbury and Lady Marjorie Burrell Bruce of England.

SUNDAY IN LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY, UNDER THE NEW BLUE LAW REGIME

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 2.—Lexington today experienced its first Sunday under the blue law regime. Only a few milk wagons attempted to run, and their drivers were arrested. Most of the population drank coffee without rum. Families whose sick children were deprived of milk complained bitterly and threatened suits for damages. Ice wagons did not attempt to run. Late this afternoon the city solicitor decided that both have the right to run, and the drivers were released. Only about thirty people were arrested for violating the Sunday law. Two hundred had announced their intention of continuing business, but Saturday of continuing business, but they decided, when they started to open and saw the police, that they had better keep closed.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY PREACHES IN TRINITY CHURCH

New York, Oct. 2.—Trinity church, rich in historical associations, and one of the landmarks of New York, had the honor of welcoming the archbishop of Canterbury, and the highest dignitary in the church of Great Britain, to preach in its walls. The edifice was jammed and thousands were turned away.

Colonel William Jay, on behalf of the vestrymen of the church corporation, greeted the archbishop in an extended address. His grace, responding, said: "Thankful shall I be if the visit which I am paying to your country may contribute something toward the bettering of the world, and the account may be inaccurate—half fact, half guess, but so it must or another way be found."

"We know so much about all that is going on that we come to care less. Nothing happens anywhere but some hurried account is heard of it or two spread throughout the world. The account may be inaccurate—half fact, half guess, but so it must or another way be found."

MORMON AND GENTILE HOSTESSES FOR UTAH AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has the following item, of interest to Utah people, in a recent issue: "The Utah building at the World's fair now has two hostesses. Miss Inez Thomas, a Mormon girl, and Miss Cora H. Snyder of Salt Lake City, who profess the Gentile religion."

The selection of a hostess from each religion was made by the Utah commissioners for the reason that the Mormon and Gentile religions dominated all the questions of the western state, and it was believed that the people of both religions who visit the fair would be better pleased if they should be greeted by a lady of their own sect. The position of hostess was created last week as a result of the decision of the Utah commission to entertain during the remainder of the fair most of the young ladies entered upon their duties last Monday.

Miss Thomas lives in a suburb of Ogden, and her father was formerly the president of the high council and a Mormon bishop. This position in Utah is one entirely different from the same office in the Gentile community, as it embraces the financial end of the church. Miss Thomas inherits with several other sisters a large fortune left by her father. She has welcomed all the visitors up to the present time and has made many friends among them and the exposition officials and state commission members. She is well known among exposition dwellers and universally liked.

Miss Snyder is the daughter of a well known Salt Lake lawyer and mining man and is proving as popular as her co-worker.

Morris have joined in issuing the following proclamation, addressed to the people of Salt Lake City and asking them to make tomorrow afternoon a half-holiday:

Extend Official Invitation.

The directors of the Deseret Agricultural & Manufacturing society give forth the assurance, and they have every reason to expect, that the state of 1904 will appropriately signalize the great industrial triumphs and the gratifying general prosperity which have characterized the season. The society, the approaching one should lead all its predecessors in the variety, completeness and excellence of its display.

Such occasions are beneficial and instructive in the measure that they are visited and taken part in by the public at large. Their value as encouragement to endeavor and as educational objects, if properly utilized, cannot be overestimated. The state has wisely and generously decreed that these opportunities for healthy competition and for public instruction and enjoyment shall be maintained and remains now for the people to take unto themselves the profit and the pleasure provided for them. To the end that this opportunity may be the more fully embraced by our citizens, the undersigned, at the request of the directors of the society, respectfully suggest that the afternoon of Tuesday next, Oct. 4, be made a half-holiday in the city, and that the various places of commerce and traffic, and industry, dealer and patron, and all the busy elements of society have the privilege of uniting in the acceptance of this invitation to make opening day of the fair at 1 o'clock of that day, in all respects an enthusiastic, auspicious and pleasurable event.

BULLETIN ON THE SALT INDUSTRY

Work of Edwin C. Eckel of the Geological Survey.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

OPINION REGARDING GREAT SALT LAKE.

(Special to The Herald.)

Washington, Oct. 2.—The geological survey has in preparation and will issue in a few days a bulletin on the saline deposits of the United States. This bulletin is the work of Edwin C. Eckel, who spent some time in the study of the salt industry near Great Salt Lake, Utah, and San Francisco Bay, Cal. The two salt producing areas which Mr. Eckel describes are of peculiar interest, he states, because of difference in the degree of concentration of the brine. The brine pumped from Salt Lake contains 20 per cent of saline matter and is therefore free from calcium sulphate which has been deposited naturally at an earlier stage in the evaporation of the lake water. The water of San Francisco Bay, on the other hand, contains less than that of the open sea, and its gypsum must be precipitated at the works.

Remnant of Greater Lake.

Mr. Eckel says that Great Salt Lake is but the remnant of a vast water body of water, called Lake Bonneville, which was reduced by evaporation to its present size, while at the same time it became a highly concentrated solution. The water of Great Salt Lake is considerably in its degree of concentration even during the comparatively short period that has elapsed since the retreat of Utah. If the records can be relied upon, it was at its point of maximum concentration in 1850. From that date until some time in the seventies, the lake has not increased in concentration. A reverse process then set in and the lake has now almost reached the concentration point of 1850.

The harvesting and settling ponds of the industry are described and are noted by which the lake brine is purified and the salt precipitated. He also notes the equipment of refining mills and the process by which the separation of the sulphates from the salt is accomplished.

Began With the Mormons.

Mr. Eckel says the history of salt manufacture from the waters of Great Salt Lake begins with the arrival of the Mormons in Utah in 1847. The only salt harvested at first was that obtained from the evaporation of the summer of the water contained in little lagoons or natural basins along the shore.

About 1850 dams were built to hold large quantities of water in low places for evaporation. The salt was then carried over from one year to another. About this time the chlorinated process or the reduction of silver ore was discovered and the demand for milling salt increased very rapidly.

At Present Utah Ranks Sixth among the States as a Salt Producer.

At present Utah ranks sixth among the states as a salt producer so far as quantity of salt is concerned, and the value of the product is considered. The production increased from 56,500 barrels in 1880 to 112,500 barrels in 1902.
